CARTER COUNTY LEADERS

Carter county is not neglecting agriculture which is the basis of all wealth. Some specialists are developing in the county and these specialists are accomplishing some useful things.

What O. K. Darden is doing for the pecan industry of the county, V. Roy Shores has undertaken to do for poultry, and Chas. Clay for hogs.

Mr. Shores loves the poultry industry. Nothing else pleases him quite so much as to tell of the pleasure and of the profits of the business. He is taking a leading part in arranging for the poultry fair which the county will hold within a few weeks. He has some fine chickens which came from Belgium. The stock of this breed in the mother country is practically extinct now, and these Belgian fowls will become very valuable. Mr. Shores has a number of enthusiasts in the county who are working with him, and they will add many thousands of dollars to the wealth of the county every year. A newcomer here made the remark recently that he never paid so much for eggs anywhere as he pays here, except in California. There is a good market for all products of the poultry men and there is profit and pleasure in the pursuit.

Chas. Clay will be another most useful man in the county. He has undertaken to encourage hog raising. His energies will be devoted mostly among the boys. He has a wide acquaintance over the county and knows many of the boys who will get down to business and take care of their hogs. Mr. Clay has reached this conclusion that if there are fifty boys in Carter county who will promise to stay at home and give good care to hogs, that there are fifty men who will give each of these fifty boys a pig. Fifty other boys can be given a pig a piece next year, and so on for every year. Boys who are ambitious and want to do something, will be given a chance.

The local oil mill is now investigating the proposition of installing a peanut mill in connection with its business, and there is a reasonable probability that the city within another year will have a ready market for all the peanuts that can be raised in this locality. If the plant is built at all, it will be large enough to take care of the nuts grown in several counties.

As Ardmore builds the energies of the people must be doubled to see that the entire country grows with it.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM

CORNISH ORPHANS' HOME

Petersburg, Okla., Nov. 24, 1915.
DEAR ARDMOREITE,
Ardmore, Oklahoma.

I wish to say a few words about an institution of which I am very proud and one I have had the honor of helping to establish. This institution is the Cornish Orphans' Home. I pass by the Home going to Ringling and returning home, and on these trips I often find some of the little orphans going somewhere to or from the home. I make it a point to take them into my vehicle and talk to them to find out what they will say away from the home and to learn just what that institution is doing with the money it receives, and for those little orphan children. I want to say that I am more than pleased with the great work it is doing. All of those little boys are real fine little gentlemen and their splendid manners and their politeness toward strangers and the gratitude they express for what anyone does for them shows me that every penny invested there is more than worth spending. It is a refinery of unfortunate little bits of humanity, making ladies and gentlemen of many that otherwise might become bad citizens.

I shall take more interest in the affairs of the Cornish Orphans' Home hereafter and do hope the good people of this state will see that it is never in need of the necessities.

Yours very truly,
C. J. LONGEST.

PRICKLY - PEARS
FOR DAIRY COWS

Washington, Nov. 26.—The prickly-pear, specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture say, has now been demonstrated to be a good and palatable feed for dairy cows. Prickly-pears have been fed to cattle to some extent in Texas and Mexico for many years, but their value as a feed has not been fully appreciated. Recent experiments by the department of agriculture have shown, however, that this feed can be used much more extensively and can form a much larger proportion of the ration than was believed possible heretofore.

The results of these experiments, says an article in the August issue of the Journal of Agricultural Research, indicate that there is no reason why prickly-pears should not come into general use for feed in all sections where they can be readily grown. Under proper climatic and soil conditions the prickly-pear is a perfectly practicable farm crop. At Brownsville, Texas, the average annual yield for the first two years' growth from cuttings was about 40 tons, and at San Antonio about 25 tons an acre. After the first two years a yield of 50 to 100 per cent more can be expected. Irrigation is unnecessary and the cost of growing the crop is therefore small in comparison with the tonnage produced.

The prickly-pear, it is found, contains approximately 10 per cent of dry matter, the remainder being water. If it is assumed that the nutritive values of different kinds of feed vary in direct proportion to their content of dry matter, 1 pound of sorghum hay equals 15.9 pounds of prickly-pear when the latter is fed in large quantities, and 10.1 pounds when fed moderately. One pound of sorghum silage was found to be equal 2.6 pounds of prickly-pear and 1 pound of cotton seed hulls equal 5.8. From 60 to 100 pounds of prickly-pear, 3.6 of sorghum, and 1 of cottonseed meal a day made a maintenance ration for a Jersey mature cow when dry. If no sorghum is available the amount of prickly-pear should be increased to 110 pounds and the cottonseed meal to 2 pounds. Experiments show, however, that it is best to feed not more than from 60 to 75 pounds of prickly-pears a day. When 120 to 150 pounds were fed, excessive scouring followed, and in addition the laxative effect of the feed made it extremely difficult to keep the stable in a sanitary condition.

In general, it may be said that cows like prickly-pear and eat it with relish. The feed, according to the experiments, causes an increase in the quantity of milk produced, but a slight decrease in the total production of butter fat. This decrease invigorating to the Pale and Sickly

The Old Standard general strengthening tonic, GROVE'S TASTELESS CHERRY TONIC, drives out Malaria, enriches the blood, and builds up the system. A true tonic. For adults and children, 50c becomes more pronounced as the quantity of prickly pear in the ration is increased. Butter produced on a prickly-pear ration is highly colored, but neither its flavor nor the keeping quality of the milk is noticeably influenced. From the experiments it is noticed, however, that cows fed upon prickly-pears appear to be more sensitive to "northerns" than those which receive a dry roughage. The greater the quantity of the plant consumed the more the milk production fell off during these storms. On the other hand, the feeding of prickly-pear appeared to have no influence on the offspring of the cows nor on the condition of the mothers after birth.

The cost of feeding prickly-pear will depend naturally on local conditions. There is no great difference between the spiny and the spineless varieties in their values as feed, but the cost of harvesting the latter is less. On the other hand, the spiny varieties yielded a larger tonnage to the acre in Brownsville and are not susceptible to insect depredation. They are also more hardy and can be grown on a much larger area. The cost of singeing the spines off was approximately 50 cents a ton. The most common method of removing them is by singeing with a strong gasoline torch, a machine especially constructed for this purpose being on the market.
